

Name: Andrew Craig

Organisation: National Grid

Job Role: Project Engineer – North Sea Link

I am nominating myself for the Secretary & Treasurer position on the NGN Steering Committee as I wish to become a more active participant in the energy community. I believe that this role would allow me to gain exposure across the wider energy industry and will develop my knowledge and understanding.

I am confident in my suitability for the role due to my strong communicative and organisational skills. I project managed some works to improve disused land on a National Grid substation through planting which was delivered within budget. My roles on the North Sea Link Project means that I must communicate complex technical information to people who may not have English as a first language which can prove challenging and has required me to be concise and succinct. This has developed both my written and oral communication skills which would prove invaluable in a role where I am recording minutes of NGN meetings.

I have been working on the North Sea Link project since March 2017. In that time, I have had responsibility for a group of consultants delivering telecommunications support. This piece of work has awarded me the opportunity to manage the budget and timescales of a smaller scale project and I am keen to develop this skillset further.
